Café Bustelo is celebrating its 82nd year as the world’s leading and most recognizable espresso coffee brand. The company is moving mightily to bridge the gap between generations of its loyalists and newly-initiated fans while reawakening the traditional Latin and European coffee break.

It all started when Gregorio Bustelo, a young man from Galicia, Spain, arrived in Cuba and fell in love with the coffee of the island. Eager to learn, he got a job at a coffee roaster, and after just a few months met the girl of his dreams — a young Cuban woman who shared Gregorio’s passion for coffee.

In 2011, The J.M. Smuckers Company acquired privately held Rowland Coffee Roasters Inc., which houses both Café Bustelo and Café Pilon.

Pau Says: I am so thrilled to be joining the Joseph A. Unanue Latino Institute and its amazing, committed team! Together we will keep working with the Seton Hall and the Latino communities to build the next generation of Latino leaders. There is so much work to be done to empower Latino students, and there is no better place to do it than the Joseph A. Unanue Latino Institute.
