From the President

St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, from whom our University takes its name, had a lifelong commitment to education. As visionary and principal architect of our country’s parochial school system, her deepest and most dearly-held conviction was to form responsible citizens capable of bringing to society the wisdom, knowledge, competence and integrity it so desperately needs, then as now.

"It has been the only desire of my soul to know the Truth," Mother Seton once wrote, nearly two centuries ago. As our University prepares to celebrate its Sesquicentennial – 150 years of service to you, the students who are the most important members of our community – I can say without hesitation that our desire remains the same: The courses contained in this catalog have as their ultimate goal that truth which our patroness sought with her whole heart, mind and strength.

Truth in all its wonderfully rich and varied aspects, theological and scientific, philosophical and literary, is the stated aim and essential characteristic of a Seton Hall education which seeks to form servant leaders willing and able to give something of lasting value to the society in which they live and work.

Please keep this in mind as you glance through the pages of this catalog and prepare for the academic year. In selecting your courses, know that you are embarking on a great adventure and following thousands who have gone before you, each pursuing that truth which alone sets us free.

Godspeed on this, one of the great adventures of your life!

From the Provost

As you consult the Seton Hall University Catalogue for information regarding admissions, programs, degrees, etc., I suggest that you keep in mind, as well as take to heart, the passage from the University Vision Statement, found at the bottom of this page. This passage highlights and explains Seton Hall University’s unique and noble focus on leadership. This focus on “educating students to be servant leaders in a global society” reflects the elements of Seton Hall’s tripartite identity: first, the Catholic intellectual tradition; second, the heritage of the liberal arts and sciences; and third, professional training.

The model of the servant leader is the thread that runs through and binds the components of Seton Hall University’s tripartite identity. Servant leaders are precisely what is required in our ever more interconnected world, in which issues of morality, politics, finance, etc., grow more complex and challenging by the day.

So, as you use this catalogue to make decisions regarding your studies, remember that Seton Hall’s courses and degree programs are designed not only to provide information but also to impart wisdom.

Knowing the difference between genuine wisdom and mere information constitutes one giant step toward knowing what servant leaders are all about.

Thomas K. Lindsay, Ph.D.
Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
Seton Hall University

“The University’s faith and justice commitments will inform all its efforts in supporting faculty and educating students to be servant leaders in a global society.”

Our Mission

Seton Hall is a major Catholic university. In a diverse and collaborative environment it focuses on academic and ethical development. Seton Hall students are prepared to be leaders in their professional and community lives in a global society and are challenged by outstanding faculty, an evolving technologically advanced setting and values-centered curricula.

AS APPROVED BY THE SETON HALL UNIVERSITY BOARD OF REGENTS, JUNE 6, 1996.

“Every life has a theme, and the theme of the great life raises questions, to answer which one must advance the actual frontiers of knowledge.”

ISSAC ROSENFIELD
University Overview

Seton Hall University was founded in 1856 by Bishop James Roosevelt Bayley, the first bishop of Newark, who named it after his aunt, Elizabeth Ann Seton, a pioneer in Catholic education and the first American-born saint. The University is the oldest diocesan university in the United States.

Nestled on 58 acres in the suburban village of South Orange, New Jersey, Seton Hall’s campus is home to eight schools and colleges: the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Education and Human Services, the College of Nursing, the School of Diplomacy and International Relations, the School of Graduate Medical Education, the Stillman School of Business, Immaculate Conception Seminary School of Theology and University College.

Seton Hall’s ninth school, the School of Law is located in Newark, New Jersey.

A Tradition of Christian Values

Seton Hall University is founded on and defines itself and its academics, student life and community programs on a Christian understanding of the nature of the world and the human person. With a tradition of quality education based on Christian values, the University takes pride in its concern for the intellectual, ethical and spiritual development of its undergraduate and graduate students.

Religious beliefs and values are taken seriously at Seton Hall. The University emphasizes the importance of religious and ethical concerns to all areas of human inquiry. With Roman Catholic teaching and tradition as a life-enhancing and enabling vision, the University calls on its students to explore and appreciate all that is the best and most humane in the world.

Seton Hall is Catholic not only by its charter and mission, but also by its ongoing spirit and activity. There exists a basic tenet at the University that religious faith is vital to life and its meaning. This tenet provides a context in which the University has and will continue to define and develop its identity.

At the same time, Seton Hall is committed to bringing together people of different races, cultures, religious traditions, lifestyles and ethnic backgrounds into a community that is respectful and supportive. This commitment has helped to establish a truly multicultural community in which all people of good will are welcome.

Seton Hall strives to develop the intellectual, social and religious talents of its students so they may live their lives responsibly, generously and successfully.

Academic Programs: A Commitment to Excellence

At the undergraduate level, Seton Hall offers more than 60 majors and concentrations, as well as many minors, certificates, and interdisciplinary and other special programs. These curricula are continually evaluated and enhanced to meet the changing educational, professional and technological needs and expectations of our increasingly complex society.

One thing that has remained consistent, however, is the University's commitment to individual attention: With over 350 full-time faculty and many adjunct faculty, the average class size is just 20 students, and the student-faculty ratio is 15-to-1. In addition to a highly dedicated and accessible faculty, the University offers comprehensive academic advising and career development programs, as well as a diversity of special services designed to assist students in their academic, personal, professional and spiritual development. At Seton Hall, students find people who are willing to listen, offer support and help them achieve their goals.

The University also encourages students to enhance their academic preparation through involvement in extracurricular activities, such as student government; student professional organizations; internships and cooperative education experiences; varsity, intramural and club sports; recreation and fitness activities; fraternities and sororities; community service; cultural programs; and ethnic and other special-interest organizations.

A Window to the Wider World

Seton Hall is in the midst of one of the world’s most cosmopolitan centers of education, business, publishing, art and entertainment. The University’s close proximity to New York City (which is 14 miles from South Orange) allows students to explore the best that the “Big Apple” has to offer, including museums, plays, concerts and sporting events. In the city as well as throughout areas of New Jersey, students take part in field trips, internships, cooperative education assignments and community service activities. And with the increasing importance of international business, communication and governmental cooperation, many students elect to pursue international study programs.

The History of Seton Hall

From its original enrollment of a handful of students, Seton Hall grew rapidly. During its first 12 years, the College enrolled more than 500 freshmen from 17 states and six foreign countries. The seeds of diversity at Seton Hall were planted almost from its birth.

Seton Hall always has reflected the growing ethnic scope of its students and the increasing diversity of the Church and society it has served. In the 19th century, in spite of setbacks, major fires, lean times and the Civil War, the College continued to expand. By 1937, Seton Hall established a University College. This marked the first matriculation of women at Seton Hall. The University became fully coeducational in 1968.

The years after World War II witnessed unprecedented growth for Seton Hall as it responded to the needs of thousands of veterans seeking higher education. The College was organized into a university in 195!0, comprising the College of Arts and Sciences and the schools of Business, Nursing and Education. The School of Law opened its doors in 1951 and the John C. Whitehead School of Diplomacy and International Relations was established in 1997, and formally named in 2002.

The next two decades saw the construction and modernization of a large number of facilities and the construction of the library, science building, residence halls and the University Center. Many new programs and majors were inaugurated, as were important social outreach efforts. New ties were established with the private and industrial sectors, and a growing partnership developed with federal and state governments in creating programs for the economically and educationally disadvantaged.

The '70s and '80s continued to be a time of growth and renewal. New business and nursing classroom buildings and an art center were opened. In 1984, Immaculate Conception Seminary returned to Seton Hall, its original home until 1926, when it moved to Darlington. With construction of four new residence halls between 1986-88, and the purchase of an off-campus apartment building in 1990, Seton Hall now provides living space for approximately 2,100 students.

The physical development of the campus continued in the 1990s. In 1994, construction was completed on the $20 million, four-story Walsh Library. This facility provides first-class study and research resources to undergraduate and graduate students, faculty and scholars from around the world. The opening of Walsh Library is symbolic of Seton Hall's transformation from a small, local institution whose library housed the personal collection of its president to a major national university with library holdings of nearly 500,000 volumes.

The opening, in September 1997, of Kozlowski Hall, Seton Hall's newest academic center, was a clear example of the University's commitment to technology and the expanding role of information technology in higher education. A six-story, 126,000 square-foot facility, Kozlowski Hall houses the Stillman School of Business, the College of Education and Human Services, the Center for Public Service and the Department of Psychology, and provides a wide range of teaching spaces - from seminar rooms to a 390-seat auditorium. All classrooms in the building are wired to accommodate notebook computers, and many of the lecture halls are equipped with distance-learning technology.

The 1956 centenary history of Seton Hall concludes with these words: "Seton Hall University's great boast and claim to fame is not predicated on expansion, buildings or even curriculum. It lies rather in the hearts and minds of a dedicated and devoted faculty." Seton Hall's history has been one primarily of people: students and faculty living and working together in a community of learning, a community rooted in a Catholic tradition that is a home for the mind, the heart and the spirit.

Priest Community at Seton Hall

From its earliest existence as a diocesan college, Seton Hall has been staffed by the priests of the Archdiocese of Newark. At present, approximately 42 priests serve the University community in a variety of ways. Some are in administration or on the staff, others are professors on the University or Seminary faculties. Some work directly with students in a pastoral capacity in Campus Ministry.

The presence of the priests of the Archdiocese of Newark, and those from other dioceses or religious orders who also work on campus, is a vital element in furthering the Catholic orientation and commitment of the University. In addition to their administrative or academic duties, the priests minister to all members of the University community, not only through the scheduled liturgical services in the University chapels, but also through their availability, personal concern and response to individual needs.

Accreditation and Memberships

Seton Hall University is fully accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. The academic qualifications of the undergraduate programs have merited their accreditation by appropriate professional memberships as well. Below is a list of University memberships; additional information regarding individual program accreditation is available from appropriate University departments. The University's National Honor Society memberships are listed in the Academic Policies and Procedures section of this catalogue.

Documents describing the University's accreditation status are available for review in the Monsignor William Noé Field University Archives and Special Collections Center, University Libraries.

The University’s Technology Long-Range Plan

Seton Hall University has made a major commitment to information technology through its Information Technology Long-Range Plan. This plan was approved by the University’s Board of Regents in 1995 and revised in 1997. Under this plan, the University has invested more than $15 million to improve its technology systems and services, including wiring of classrooms, residence halls and public spaces, and replacing the University’s fiber-optic network and servers. The University’s technology plan focuses on the use of information technology in support of teaching and learning. The University views information technology as a transformative agent that not only enhances traditional modes of teaching and learning, but also enables new kinds of teaching and learning and new methods of delivering the University’s educational services.

The University’s 2003 Strategic Plan builds on the momentum and success of the first technology plan. It encourages further innovation in the use of technology to enhance the learning experience of the student and explore the possibilities for achieving an even greater sense of community. Within this plan, technology is used to transcend the limits of the physical classroom. It keeps students connected with one another and their teachers beyond allotted class time, thereby enabling all to be engaged in dynamic and shared learning activities on campus. The University Strategic Plan also focuses on the use of technology to streamline and improve the administrative activities of the University.

One of the cornerstones of the University’s technology plan is making technology ubiquitous throughout the educational experience. This commitment is embodied in the University’s Mobile Computing Program. This is an innovative, academic program with three components:

Ubiquitous Access: All students in the Mobile Computing Program are provided with a laptop computer as part of their tuition and fees. The computer is upgraded at the end of the student’s second year as a full-time undergraduate student at Seton Hall University.

Curricular Integration: The University supports and encourages faculty to integrate the use of technology into the curriculum.

Infrastructure and Support: The University provides the technology infrastructure and support services that enable students and faculty to make effective use of this teaching and learning tool.
Participation in the Mobile Computing Program is mandatory for all full-time undergraduate students. This program is not only a computer lease arrangement; rather, it is a comprehensive, academic program designed to integrate information technology into all aspects of student life. No computer skills are required to participate; the University provides appropriate training and support for all students, whether they are beginning or advanced computer users.

The Mobile Computing Program, along with other teaching, learning and technology initiatives at Seton Hall University, is designed to achieve the University’s goal of providing a technologically advanced learning environment. Through this program, Seton Hall University makes the best possible use of technology in teaching and learning, and prepares students for life and careers in the Information Age.

Transforming Education Through Information Technology

Seton Hall University has institutionalized the process of educational change through the use of information technology. This commitment was recognized by the University’s receipt of the 2000 Educause Award for Systemic Progress in Teaching and Learning with Technology. The University’s Teaching, Learning and Technology Center (TLTC), located in Walsh Library, provides the programs and services that support the effective use of information technology to enhance teaching and learning. The Curriculum Development Initiative (CDI) provides systematic support for departments integrating information technology into required core courses or course sequences.

The Student Technology Assistants Program (STA) is a nation-wide, student-run program, affiliated with the TLT Group STA+ initiative, that engages students in supporting the University’s technology initiatives for integrating technology into the curriculum, and for supporting the University community on its standard software applications. The STA program is student-centered and student-run with guidance from University faculty and technologists, who provide students with a structured experience in technology support and consulting services. Students interested in part-time work as technology consultants should visit the STA Web site at technology.shu.edu/sta for more information and to apply.

The Campus Network

Seton Hall University received the 1999 EDUCAUSE Award for Excellence in Campus Networking and in 2003, Forbes magazine ranked Seton Hall as the 16th most connected campus in the United States. The University also has been included in Yahoo! Internet Life magazine’s listing of the Top 50 “Most Wired” Universities in the United States.

All residence halls are fully wired and all of the University’s classrooms have full wireless network capability, including a significant number that provide power and a wired network connection to each seat. A number of public spaces are also covered by the wireless network and have wired data connections including the entire University Library, the University Center, study lounges in Kozlowski Hall, the cafeteria’s Galleon Room, the Pirate’s Cove coffeehouse, the Pirate’s Cellar freshmen lounge, and the University Green.

Each student at the University automatically receives a network account. The campus network provides access to e-mail, the Internet and a wide variety of instructional software. All computers use the Microsoft Windows operating system and the Microsoft Office application suite. The University’s campus e-mail is based on Lotus Domino, and students access their e-mail by using their standard Internet browser. A number of classes use Blackboard as a collaborative learning environment, providing online document repositories, discussion groups and assessment tools for faculty and student use. The University provides Webhosting services for student home pages (100MB) and network storage for student files (125MB). Upon graduation, students are eligible for an alumni e-mail account for life and at no cost. The Department of Information Technology has developed a very comprehensive Web site to serve the community. For information on Web development, system status or the Mobile Computing Program, log onto technology.shu.edu

The University is committed to developing students’ information literacy skills. Toward that end the University Library is spearheading campus instructional and research information literacy initiatives. The University Library provides orientation and instruction in information literacy skills to all freshmen in partnership with the Freshmen Studies Program and the English Department. In a growing number of English courses library faculty are available to assist students through their electronic course management system called Blackboard. The library faculty instruct nearly 5,000 students including upper-level and graduate students. The library faculty also provide services to high school students through Project Acceleration, a program which enables high school students to earn college credits.

Technology available in the University Libraries includes the Web-based delivery of key academic databases of indexes, abstracts, and digital full-text resources for study and research. The University Libraries’ Learning Resource Center provides users with 28 state-of-the-art computer workstations, and the University Libraries feature wireless connectivity throughout the facility. The libraries’ electronic-reserve (e-Reserve) capability allows students to access faculty-assigned readings and electronic academic databases from anywhere on campus, or remotely off campus, with Internet access day or night.

The University Libraries facility complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (1990) and the Rehabilitation Act (1973) by providing building access via an entrance ramp and elevator service, accommodating wheelchair-bound individuals, providing handicapped-accessible rest rooms and nearby parking spaces for the handicapped. Students or faculty with visible or invisible disabilities, who self-identify at the Circulation Desk, may receive special assistance. Located on the first floor, the gallery is a state-of-the-art, climate-controlled space encompassing 2,500 square feet. During the academic year, Walsh Library Gallery offers a number of rotating exhibits, providing campus and outside community members with an opportunity to observe and experience beauty in works of art. In addition to interior exhibit space, there are six exterior window exhibits. These window galleries highlight exhibitions being shown in the main gallery, showcase special events on campus, draw attention to issues of current interest, and provide an ongoing visual survey of new library acquisitions and technology. Exhibits and special event programs are free-of-charge.

Artists from around the world have displayed their work in Walsh Library Gallery, including artists from the United States, Brazil, China, the Dominican Republic, France, Italy, Lithuania, Poland and the Ukraine, among others. American Humanics
Roseanne Mirabella, Ph.D., Campus Executive Director
Joseph Marbach, Ph.D., Faculty Adviser

The American Humanics (AH) program is an innovative course of study that equips college and university students to become skilled professionals and leaders in local nonprofit organizations. The mission of the program is to prepare and certify future nonprofit professionals to work with America’s youth and families and to be the region’s preferred source of nonprofit professionals. Seton Hall University’s students are increasingly civic-minded and committed to community service – including an inclination to pursue employment in nonprofit organizations. American Humanics graduates immediately impact the nonprofit agencies they join and continue to make a significant contribution to the nonprofit sector throughout their careers. The American Humanics program is offered to undergraduate students on more than 80 campuses across the country. Seton Hall University became an American Humanics affiliate in December 2000.

Seton Hall University’s American Humanics program offers an innovative course of study and experiential education to students. The benefits to the students include:

• certification in entry-level nonprofit employer competencies;
• coursework grounded in the foundation and practices of nonprofit management;
• tested practices and principles through experiential learning;
• one-to-one support, career development and mentoring;
• networking with prospective employers;
• opportunity to test skills and various nonprofit roles through internships, co-curricular and community service activities;
• potential for references and referrals from nonprofit organizations’ executive directors, advisory board members and community leaders;
• exposure to national nonprofit network of partners and career options;
• increased sense of being connected and belonging to the community; and
• opportunities for lasting friendships.

The Center for African-American Studies

Through the study of the unique history, society and life of black people, it also seeks to encourage active participation in the struggle for social justice and freedom for black people and for all peoples.

The Center is assisted in its activities by an advisory board consisting of members of various divisions of the University, students and the community. It seeks to involve the entire University in an appreciation of the black experience and the promotion of social change. Further, it seeks to respond to the black community and, by extension, other related community groups. To achieve these objectives, the Center offers special programs for community agencies that take place on campus and at various community sites.

Setrak K. Tanielyan, Ph.D., Technical Director

The Center for Applied Catalysis (CAC) realizes the positive impact of harnessing the talent and resources of both academia and industry through mutually beneficial partnerships. This Center was established at Seton Hall University as an entrepreneurial offshoot of the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry in 1997. Its main thrust is to assist industrial clients in developing catalytic processes for commercially important reactions. The work is performed primarily by postdoctoral associates working under the supervision of Robert L. Augustine, executive director, and Setrak K. Tanielyan, technical director. The Center works on research projects that have industrial applications, and thus, are of maximum use to clients. For more information about the CAC, please consult the Web site at artsci.shu.edu/chemistry/cac/

For more information about the Center for Catholic Studies, please consult our Web site at academic.shu.edu/cs/

The Center for College Teaching
Albert B. Hakim, Ph.D., Director

The Center for College Teaching was established in 1987 to welcome new faculty and introduce them to University life. While supervision of new faculty rests within each member’s respective department, the Center is among many vehicles that supplement departmental input. The Center introduces new styles in teaching and learning, successful innovations, different approaches to specific categories of students and other items of pedagogical worth, which serve to broaden the vision of what is happening on the college landscape. This is done by developing a calendar of events addressing these objectives, by making current literature available and by offering practical interdisciplinary opportunities.

Paralleling this direct approach to teaching enhancement is the Center’s goal of fostering a sense of community among the faculty in the hope of realizing that education is a common enterprise, that one is not obliged to go it alone and that one does better in the classroom individually when he or she knows that the effort is shared by others. Time and again, respected educators have insisted that what the faculty in higher education in this country need most of all is a renewed sense of common enterprise and common vocation. For these reasons, the Center makes community its primary focus.

The Center for Leadership Studies
Lisa McCauley Parles, J.D., Director

Since its inception in 1994, The Leadership Studies Program has been shaped by a Leadership Council of corporate executives, entrepreneurs and community leaders from the New York/New Jersey metropolitan area.

The purpose of the program is to develop in its students a core set of competencies that will enhance students’ existing talents to lead organizations. These essential skills include proficiency in strategic thinking, critical analysis, logical reasoning, and oral and written communication. In addition, the development of the leadership potential of participating students is emphasized.

Practical business experience is an integral part of the Leadership Studies Program. During their junior year, leadership students are paired with mentors from the Leadership Council and work with these corporate executives on a project related to the executive’s company or organization. Through a joint program initiative with the Career Center, the program offers several workshops and events, as well as assistance with securing summer internships. In addition, guest lecturers are invited each fall and spring semester to address the leadership students. Students are required to complete community service projects and hold leadership positions both on and off campus to complement their studies. Students must maintain a 3.0 GPA. Visit the Web site at business.shu.edu/leadership

The Center for Public Service/Graduate Department of Public and Healthcare Administration
Jonathan Engel, Ph.D., Chair

The Center for Public Service and its associated Graduate Department of Public and Healthcare Administration houses two graduate degree programs—a Master of Public Administration (M.P.A.) and a Master of Healthcare Administration (M.H.A.). The Center coordinates interdisciplinary research and outreach to the public (e.g. government) and nonprofit sectors, as well as health-related agencies such as medical centers. Visit the Web site artsci.shu.edu/cps or call (973) 761-9510 for more information.

The M.P.A. program is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA). It offers four concentrations: health policy and management; public service: leadership, governance and policy; nonprofit organization management; and arts administration.

The M.H.A. program, designed for professionals who wish to advance in their management careers or for individuals interested in careers in healthcare administration, prepares students to assume leadership positions in a variety of healthcare settings. Both on-campus and online programs are offered.

The Graduate Department of Public and Healthcare Administration also offers graduate certificate programs in healthcare administration, nonprofit organization management and arts administration. These programs are geared to meet the continuing education and professional development needs of managers and administrators in these fields. For qualified students, courses in these programs may be applied toward the M.P.A. or M.H.A. degree.

The Institute for Service Learning
Joseph Marbach, Ph.D. and Roseanne Mirabella, Ph.D., Co-Directors

The Institute for Service Learning was established in 1997 to support the activities of Seton Hall University as it implements service learning on campus. Service learning, defined as a form of experiential education in which students engage in activities that address human and community needs together with structured opportunities intentionally designed to promote student learning and development, is a relatively new pedagogy that integrates academic and community-based learning with the intellectual work at the University.

Designed to introduce students to the complexity of social issues and community decision making, the institute provides students with opportunities to participate in both in-class and onsite projects, such as volunteerism, community development and nonprofit management. Service learning affords students the opportunities to explore the causes of community problems, clarify his or her values, consider social service as a career choice, and become a more informed citizen and decision maker.

To assist in the achievement of these goals, the Institute develops and implements seminars to introduce faculty to the theory and practice of service learning, works with faculty in graduate and undergraduate departments as they develop courses that involve service learning, facilitates collaboration among professors and staff to enhance volunteerism in the community, and works with community leaders in Essex County and beyond to establish service learning and nonprofit management relations.

The Institute of Judaeo-Christian Studies
Reverend Lawrence Frizzell, D.Phil., Director

The Institute of Judaeo-Christian Studies, founded in 1953, is primarily a center for research and publication. Its area of study is the Church’s rootedness in Judaism and the relationship between the Church and the Jewish people through the ages. Its work includes an annual series of lectures, study days and conferences.

These are intended to inform the general public about various facets of Christian-Jewish relations. A special lecture in the fall of each year celebrates the memory of Monsignor John M. Oesterreicher, founder of the Institute. He was an important collaborator in preparing the statement by the Second Vatican Council on “The Church’s Bond with the Jewish People.”

The Institute began a graduate program in Jewish-Christian studies in the fall of 1975. In 1978, the program was incorporated into the College of Arts and Sciences; in 1979, it became a department of the College. The department and Institute are thus independent units, even though origin and goal bespeak an intimate relationship. The requirements for admission to the program and a description of the course offerings may be found in this catalogue. Visit the Web site at artsci.shu.edu/Graduate/jewish

The Institute on Work
Barrie A. Peterson, M.Div., and William J. Toth, Ph.D., Co-Directors

The Institute on Work was established in 1997 under the direction of Ray Bramucci who served as assistant secretary for Employment and Training of the United States Department of Labor from 1998-2001. Under the aegis of the Center for Catholic Studies, it has as its mission the creation of constituencies of conscience that generate fresh thinking, new partnerships and creative long-term strategies to ensure full public access to family-supporting jobs in New Jersey. The Institute examines moral, economic and spiritual issues of work in contemporary society: Who gets work in our society? How well do we prepare people, particularly the next generation, for the world of work? How just are our workplaces? What is the meaning of work? How can we make our work more communal and humane? How can we mutually integrate the demands of family and work?

The inaugural activity of the Institute was the 1997 Seton Hall University Job Creation Summit Conference followed by five task forces considering issues raised at the conference and recommendations. The Institute completed a study, “Employer Attitudes and Experiences with the Welfare-to-Work Transition in New Jersey,” for the New Jersey Department of Labor in November 1998 and, in 1999, delivered the Personal Enhancement Program to 1,300 employees of the Newark Archdiocese Catholic Community Services and a national conference on Work-Life Ministry. A program of technical assistance was begun to aid community and faith-based groups in starting nonprofit temp-to-perm help agencies. In 2000, the Institute began providing aid to two state programs: the Governor’s Faith-Based Initiative and the Entrepreneurial Training Institute. Papers on Immigrant Workers in New Jersey and American employers’ contingent worker practices were produced.

The Institute served as evaluator for community-based organization training/job-creation projects, offered a course titled Human Capital in the New Economy through the Stillman School of Business, and planned a March 2002 conference on contingent work and work-life issues for employers. Public education and advocacy is accomplished through public speaking, serving on statewide task forces, providing information on the Web site and through interviews with Business Week, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, The Record and The Star-Ledger. For more information, visit the Web site at academic.shu.edu/ccs/work or contact the office in Presidents Hall, Room 321, at (973) 313-6103.

The International Institute for Clergy Formation

The International Institute for Clergy Formation at Seton Hall University is the only formation program designed specifically for priests. The off-campus site of the five-week Summer Institute is San Alfonso Retreat Center, Long Branch, New Jersey. In addition, there are off-campus, one-week winter institutes at San Pedro Catholic Retreat and Conference Center, Winter Park, Florida, and the University of San Diego, both in January.

The mission of the Institute is “to provide for the individual Catholic priest a graduate university teaching and learning environment that addresses his body, soul and spirit, as well as his unique vocation in a way that leads him to a clearer perception and fuller/richer experience of the essential ministerial significance that is his by virtue of his ordination, so as to support his ongoing formation as a person and his sacred mission as a shepherd.” The implementation of the objectives and/or goal of this statement follows Pope John Paul II’s document “Pastores dabo Vobis: I Will Send You Shepherds.”

The Institute has been in existence for 18 years, and more than 10,000 priests have attended all or part of the summer and winter institutes. Foundation money assists the Institute in financing the best possible international faculty; research efforts to guide the implementation of the Vision Statement; and lowering tuition costs to reach as many priests as possible. The Sister Rose Thering Endowment for Jewish-Christian and Holocaust Studies

The Sister Rose Thering Endowment, established in 1993 in honor of Sister Rose’s work as an educator and advocate for improving relations between Christians and Jews, is part of the Department of Jewish-Christian Studies in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The goals of the endowment are to promote interreligious understanding and cooperation through education; to provide tuition assistance for teachers in public, private and parochial schools for graduate courses in Jewish-Christian and Holocaust Studies at Seton Hall University; and to allow teachers to enroll as non-matriculated students for up to twelve credits and receive a certificate of completion. Teachers may also enroll in the Graduate Department of Jewish-Christian Studies to obtain a master of arts degree.

The Endowment allows both educators and members of the community to explore lessons of lasting social significance, countering the destructive power of prejudice, anti-Semitism, ethnocentrism and bigotry born of ignorance, through workshops, lectures and travel programs. This program follows the mandate of the state of New Jersey to teach about the Holocaust in all schools, grades K-12.

Scholarship applications are available by calling the office of the Endowment, (973) 761-9006, contacting us by e-mail, zirlmari@shu.edu, or searching our Web site at academic.shu.edu/thering
