The Stillman School of Business is proud to announce a competition open to undergraduate and graduate students who are fully enrolled in the School. The eligibility requirements and the terms of the competition are as follows:

1. Students must be in good standing at the University. Undergraduates need to have successfully completed 15 credits at Seton Hall University as of January 1, 2010, and graduates need to have completed 6 credits of graduate work at the Stillman School as of January 1, 2010.

2. It is important for the education of our students to keep our curriculum current. In this competition, you are asked to identify up to five distinct topical areas (business or otherwise) that are not currently required in the School’s curriculum but should be. As you describe these five areas, you will need to provide a rationale defending why these topical areas are of importance to business professionals, either as they commence their careers or progress through it. Submissions should not exceed three double-spaced pages. Please do not place your name on your essay; personally identifiable information only goes on the application cover sheet. The winner of the competition will be awarded a $750 prize.

3. Where material is equally competitive, the applicant’s grade point average, as well as accumulated credits, will be used to break ties.
